Credit and Default Risk: A decline in the financial health of an issuer of a fixed income security can lead to an inability or unwillingness to repay a loan or meet a contractual obligation. This could cause the value of its bonds to fall or become worthless. Funds with high exposures to non-investment grade securities have a higher exposure to this risk. Currency Risk: Changes in exchange rates may cause the value of investments to decrease or increase. Derivatives and Counterparty Risk: The use of certain derivatives could result in the fund having a greater or more volatile exposure to the underlying assets and an increased exposure to counterparty risk. This may expose the fund to larger gains or losses associated with market movements or in relation to a trade counterparty being unable to meet its obligations. Emerging Markets Risk: Emerging markets, and especially frontier markets, generally carry greater political, legal, counterparty and operational risk. Investments in these markets may expose the fund to larger gains or losses. Liquidity Risk: Difficult market conditions could result in certain securities becoming hard to sell at a desired time and price. Interest Rate Risk: Changes in interest rates will usually result in the values of bond and other debt instruments moving in the opposite direction (e.g. a rise in interest rates likely leads to fall in bond prices). China InterBank Bond Market ("CIBM"): The fund may be exposed to liquidity risks, settlement risks, default of counterparties and market volatility associated with CIBM. In addition, the CIBM rules are new and still subject to further clarification and/or changes, which may adversely affect the fund's capability to invest in the CIBM.

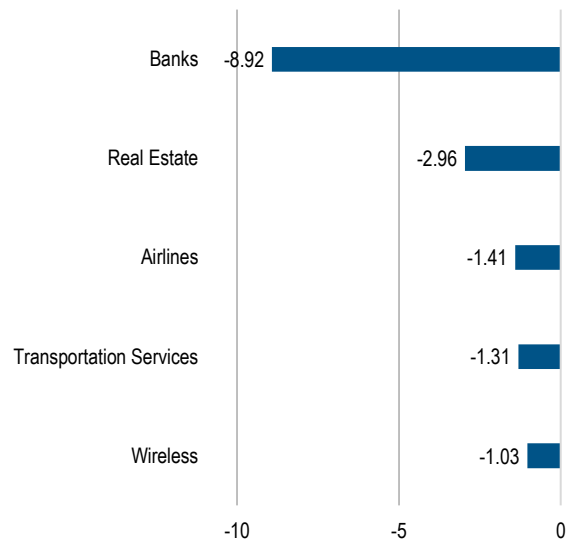

MONTH IN REVIEW

- July was characterized by robust performance in fixed income, together with more volatile and diverging returns in equity markets. On the macroeconomic front, weaker data on US inflation reinforced expectations of rate cuts at the next Federal Reserve meeting in September, in addition to weaker US labor market data and a rising unemployment rate only adding to concerns.
- In the U.S., the 10-year Treasury yield fell 37 bps to 4.03% as markets priced in a rate cut for September, and the dollar weakened. We saw a broad strengthening in select Asian currencies as U.S. rates rallied, an unwinding of the EM FX carry trade, and a hawkish stance from the Bank of Japan, which delivered a 15bps policy rate hike to 0.25%.
- Asia high yield returned 1.47% in July and brought year-to-date returns to 12.14%, and spreads tightened by 235bps over the period. The performance of Asia HY were driven by China and HK property developers, and Vedanta, a India metals & mining name, which was upgraded to B- by S&P. The overall sector remained firm in July buoyed by better sentiment and constructive view on the credit and backdrop of Asian credits in general.
- Given the highly dynamic situation, we continue to monitor and take actions where we see opportunities. We believe rigorous risk management and careful security selection will be crucial for investors in the region. We continue to believe that active management is especially important during this fast-moving cycle where dislocations are likely and capturing resulting opportunities can be key to producing alpha.

PORTFOLIO POSITIONING

We expect performance in Asia high yield to be uneven with differentiation in fundamentals likely to continue, highlighting the importance of active credit selection. We continue to maintain a focus on a high quality and diversified portfolio, and choose to not stretch for yields. The Fund focuses on sectors with stronger long-term growth potential and more attractive relative value.

We remain selective and focused on bottom-up credit selection. We are constructive on the Macao gaming and India renewable energy sectors due to the continued recovery and policy tailwinds. We continue to be underweight China banks and local government financing vehicles (LGFVs), and select Asian financials, partly due to relatively tight valuations, and are finding better value in other global financial credits. We are maintaining a cautious and selective stance towards the China property sector. One key challenge facing the sector is how to revive sentiment for the property market. An overall improvement in income expectations and property easing is needed to stabilize the property market. We continue to rely on the insights and top picks of our credit research analysts and expect to maintain a selective and up-in-quality approach. We are reducing asymmetric risk and closely monitoring concentrations.

OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

In our latest secular outlook, Yield Advantage, we highlight a renewed focus on fixed income markets, which we believe are poised to generate competitive returns and lower risk compared with other asset classes. The post-pandemic inflation shock and subsequent central bank rate-hiking cycle reset bond yields sharply higher. Today's yields and a stabilizing inflation outlook are enabling bonds to reassert their fundamental advantages in portfolios.

We continue to expect Asia's growth-inflation dynamics to diverge from the rest of the world, but the outlook for each economy varies. We believe economic growth in many Asian markets will remain resilient. Amid, more supportive economic and monetary environment, emerging market debt and Asia credit continues to be a source of carry and diversification. Overall, we see opportunities in Asia credit for investors who employ an active and selective investment approach, such as in economies like Indonesia and India.

We expect China's growth to continue slowing without stalling. Notably, China is re-globalizing. Its new growth model, focused on production and infrastructure to counterbalance a property sector collapse, is driving a rise in manufacturing exports. This pivot requires re-evaluating China's role in the global economy, impact on commodity, inflation, and integration into the global financial order.

Asia credit spread and yield remain at historically heightened levels, but there could potentially be more volatility ahead. With a current spread over Treasuries (SOT) of 657bps, Asia HY continues to trade relatively wide with a 312bps and 293bps premium over U.S. and global high yield corporate respectively

The credit quality of a particular security or group of securities does not ensure the stability or safety of an overall portfolio. The Quality ratings of individual issues/issuers are provided to indicate the credit worthiness of such issues/issuer and generally range from AAA or Aaa (highest) to D or C (lowest) for S&P and Moody's respectively. ⊗ Yields reported gross of fees, the deduction of which will reduce the yield. Yields are reported in the base currency of the fund and are not specific to the share class. The current yield illustrates the income investors could get from the portfolio as a percentage of market value of the securities assuming a holding period of one year. The current yield does not take into account the future cash flows of bonds, but rather is a snapshot of the income in the portfolio as of a certain point in time.

¹Annualised Distribution Yield is as of last month ending 07/31/2024.

⊗ PIMCO calculates a Funds Estimated Yield to Maturity by averaging the yield to maturity of each security held in the Fund on a market weighted basis. PIMCO sources each security's yield to maturity from PIMCO's Portfolio Analytics database. When not available in PIMCO's Portfolio Analytics database, PIMCO sources the security's yield to maturity from Bloomberg. When not available in either database, PIMCO will assign a yield to maturity for that security from a PIMCO matrix based on prior data. PERFORMANCE AND FEES

Past performance is not a guarantee or a reliable indicator of future results. The "gross of fees" performance figures, if included, are presented before management fees and custodial fees, but do not reflect commissions, other expenses and reinvestment of earnings. The "net of fees" performance figures reflect the deduction of ongoing charges. All periods longer than one year are annualized. Investments made by a Fund and the results achieved by a Fund are not expected to be the same as those made by any other PIMCO-advised Fund, including those with a similar name, investment objective or policies. A new or smaller Fund's performance may not represent how the Fund is expected to or may perform in the long-term. New Funds have limited operating histories for investors to evaluate and new and smaller Funds may not attract sufficient assets to achieve investment and trading efficiencies. A Fund may be forced to sell a comparatively large portion of its portfolio to meet significant shareholder redemptions for cash, or hold a comparatively large portion of its portfolio in cash due to significant share purchases for cash, in each case when the Fund otherwise would not seek to do so, which may adversely affect performance.

Outlook: Statements concerning financial market trends or portfolio strategies are based on current market conditions, which will fluctuate. There is no guarantee that these investment strategies will work under all market conditions or are appropriate for all investors and each investor should evaluate their ability to invest for the long term, especially during periods of downturn in the market.
